

Anglais E : Pop Art and consumer society

ECTS : 3

Description du contenu de l'enseignement :

Half of the course will deal with the general topic of consumption and society through the social and economic aspects of consumerism today and in the future, along with its representation in art, literature or in other fields. The multiple factors in the emergence of a consumer society will be studied. The changes and the challenges linked to consumption and consumerism in various fields will be tackled. The other half of the course will introduce students to American popular culture and more specifically to Pop Art from 1956 to 1970 and its link to British and American culture and society. The course will explore a selection of Pop Art works, films and literary texts that focused on the new consumer society and used it as their subject. We will examine the materials they used and the styles of their creations, and whether the artists chose to celebrate or criticize their newfound muse.

Compétence à acquérir :

The class aims at improving your listening, reading, speaking and writing skills in English and developing your cultural knowledge and critical expression in relation to the theme of consumerism in society and its representation in art, literature and film, with a particular focus on the Pop Art movement.
